FEWER "CRYBABIES" AMONG CHILDREN NOW, M'LISS WRITES

Despite Critics of the Modernists, New Way of Training Youngsters Thus Far Shows Advantage Over Old Method

In a day when the old folks have raised their hands in an attitude of holy horror at all things that pertain to the modern child, it is gratifying to know that so eminent a man as Dr. Abraham Flexner, of the General Education Board of the Rockefeller Foundation, believes the child of the present day to be better mannered than the product of a bygone age.

"The old-fashioned obedient youngster is gone," Doctor Flexner is quoted as saying, "but what we have got in his place, in my opinion, is a far better product. As I look back on my own childhood and remember the manners of my contemporaries I must say that the child of this day, even my own children, have far better manners than I had in my time."

"The educational system pays a great deal of attention at the present time to the teaching of real manners, and any modern system of education which may, to the outside mind, upset the regular routine of discipline will not result in any deterioration of the child's manners if the teachers proceed with the proper respect for the dignity of the individual child."

Dignity of the individual child! Shades of our grandmothers! When in the old days was a youngster credited with having any individuality, much less dignity? Even those parents who were not quite certain in their minds as to the wisdom of corporal punishment and who were wont to spare the rod more often than their neighbors approved of brought their children up with the belief that they should be seen and not heard.

In those days, though one's daddy said black was white, to contradict him was treason. Moreover, such a contradiction was fraught with grave consequences. One or all of several catastrophes were sure to descend upon him. There was the prospect of a severe paddling, or of being sent to bed without one's supper, or of being shut up in a dark closet and being scared half to death.

Obedience and manners were synonymous. Contrast the old with the new methods. Picture to yourself a modern mother sending her child to bed without its supper. The neighbors would call in the authorities to stay her cruelty.

"Control yourself before you attempt to control a youngster," is the new doctrine dinned into the ears of those who have no patience with moral suasion and would resort to the old slipper tyranny to curb the ebullience of the young.

The modern child is heard on all occasions. All stop to listen to its views. Its remarks on eugenics or dietetics are regarded as cute and worth hearing. Impudence and impertinence in many cases pass for precocity and "smartness." But even so, it is as Doctor Flexner has said, Much good has come in with the new way of training children. It may be that they lack some of the shyness which was the first qualification of the well-bred child of yesterday, but they have gained in its place a confidence which, if properly watched, does not necessarily develop into annoying forwardness.

Certainly there are fewer crybabies among the modern children. This may be attributable to the fact that mothers now raise their children according to scientific principles rather than according to the old traditions. Even the slum mothers have acquired a rudimentary knowledge of food values and hygiene.

All of which you will say has nothing whatever to do with manners. But there you are wrong. Good behavior in a child depends on its state of health first of all, for it is another modern "notion" that all disobedience, stubbornness and refractoriness can be traced back to some physical ailment, and although the mother of 25 or 50 years ago would have laughed in your face had you told her that her little Johnny was had because of today takes her offspring who is inclined to be a limb of Satan to the family doctor or to the neighborhood dispensary. The surgeon's knife very often proves more effective than the slipper or the rattle.

Dear M'Liss—I am in love with some young man who once belonged to the same society as I am against him politically, and now that I am in love with him I am in love with his politics.

Dear M'Liss—Your letter in regard to "Midnight in the Garden" is very interesting. I am glad to hear that you are so interested in the article in which you are interested. Please send me a copy of the article if you can.

MARION HARLAND'S CORNER

Trinidad's Asphalt Lake. Is it true that the asphalt lake in Trinidad is bottomless, and that it is making new asphalt all the time? Where does it come from? Is it a lake? Or is it a traveler's tale, after all, that there is such a J. M. S.

There is certainly such a lake, but it is not making new asphalt all the time. Asphalt was once liquid petroleum, and centuries are required to make it solid, or so we are told. The lake is about a hundred acres in extent. Nobody knows how deep. Some years ago it was bored into a depth of 135 feet without reaching the bottom. These items are taken from a recent magazine article by a traveler who writes as if he really had been there.

Carrot Marmalade. Some one asked for a recipe for carrot marmalade. I send it, but do not print my name. What do you think? Make a cup of sugar to one of grated carrot. Juice of three lemons, one teaspoon of allspice. Mix over night in the morning add lemon juice and sugar. Cook in a double boiler. It tastes like orange marmalade. Cook one hour.

Remedy for Fleas. Will you please give me your remedy for fleas? I have tried many, but none seem to do the trick. I have a dog and a cat, and they are both infested with fleas. I have tried many, but none seem to do the trick.

Concerning Davy Crockett. Ever since I can recall I have heard that Davy Crockett was a very much better man than he is credited to be. I have read many accounts of his life, but none seem to do the trick.

Giant Silkworm Moth. I wish to know if there is any value in a giant silkworm moth. I have a few eggs of this moth, and I am wondering if they are worth anything. I have heard that they are worth a great deal of money.

To Dye a Sweater. I should like to dye a light green sweater. I have a sweater that is white, and I want to dye it green. I have heard that there is a simple method that does the trick.

Now the lovely guinea hen has been brought within the radius of fashion's demands. We've had marabou—which as everybody knows, called by any other name, is only turkey down—and coque feathers, which are exactly like the plumes of the baryard rooster, so why not call upon the picture-guinea to contribute his share?

The guinea feathers are lovely. Used in various ways, they lend an artistic touch to the hat which they adorn. I have seen small, closely-fitted toques formed entirely of guinea feathers, and others with guinea feathers and other materials. The guinea feathers are lovely. Used in various ways, they lend an artistic touch to the hat which they adorn.

Meaning of Names. Will you please tell me the meaning of the names Camilla, Anna and Edna. Also what is the origin of the name Camilla? Camilla, the French form of Camilla, means attendant at a sacrifice; Anna means grace; Edna signifies Camilla. I do not know how the name Camilla originated. It is from the Latin.

Restoring Color to Leather. How can I restore either by dyeing or other process the color of my leather shoes, which have been stored away and are spotted? A correspondent who may be depended upon for never asserting what she does not know to be the truth writes in reply to the query by another correspondent: "Artists' oil paint in shades of brown, mixed with alcohol, will do the trick. It is a simple matter to apply it with a brush, and it will restore the color of the leather that will not be conspicuous."

CHARITY AND CHILDREN HER HOBBIES, DECLARES FOUNDER OF 'CHILD DAY'

Miss Nettie Armhold Pleas

Charity and children have always been my two hobbies," declared Miss Nettie Armhold, the originator of the National Children's Day, at the Nixon Apartments, her Atlantic City residence. "Now please don't let people think I am a prude," she hastily added, "I love a good time and lots of parties."

"I suppose it seems strange that a bachelor girl should want to have a day set aside to consider the problems of the little folks, but I have always been interested in children, although I am free to confess that I don't think very much of the profession. However, poor kiddies, it's not their fault, I believe. If we had more womanly women we would have better mannered children."

"To my mind, the greatest fault of parents is that they refuse to pay any attention to the arguments of the younger members of the family. Very often, when a child has apparently been naughty, it has been through a lack of understanding rather than wilful disobedience. Few mothers will take the time to listen to the explanations of their children."

Miss Armhold has taken a most attractive girl of 19 years to live with her, so she is not without some knowledge of the all-absorbing child problem.

Then, again, Miss Armhold, who is the daughter of Rabbi Armhold, who recently celebrated his 75th birthday, has always worked with young people. She helped to organize street services for children of the slums, beginning with 45 in one of the poorest districts of Philadelphia, and in a few months had a club of 400 juveniles, who met once a week for a religious service, which included a ten-minute talk by a minister or a prominent layman. Once a month the kiddies were invited to a party, for Miss Armhold believes in giving pleasure as well as aims.

"I am not planning any general celebration for September 1, to be known as the National Children's Day. I just want to bring the subject of child welfare before the public and let each individual take his own part. I don't think it is out of the question that we can do for the boys and girls nearest them."

"I am issuing buttons, which will be sold for 5 cents apiece or $12 a thousand. They feature a golden-haired child with a red rose in her hand against the background of the American flag. The rose symbolizes charity; the flag, freedom, and the child, love."

"Last year we had a tag day for some of the children's institutions; but I don't like the idea. I don't want Children's Day to emphasize the raising of money for the poor but to bring the minds of the people to the need of personal service."

"For instance, if you are musical, or are a good reader, set aside a certain part of your time for the entertainment of children in an institution near you, or maybe you can plan an outing for them, or interest some amusement house in giving them a treat. Any federated charity will supply you with names of children's institutions, or will tell you of families where children are in want."

"I am having pledge cards printed to be distributed. On one side will be a pledge, reading, 'I pledge myself to do _____.' And for the other side I have selected this saying: 'I will keep the almsbox of your love and tenderness sealed up until your friends are dead. I'll look after it with the same care as I would my own. And while their hearts can be thrilled and made happier by them, the things you mean to say when they are gone say it for them. The flowers you mean to give for their coffin send to brighten and sweeten their graves. The things you mean to do for them, do them. I'll look after it with the same care as I would my own. And while their hearts can be thrilled and made happier by them, the things you mean to say when they are gone say it for them.
